Perpich media arts seniors win national recognition in photography and cinema

Satya Varghese Mac, Max Hart and Michael Hansen, all seniors in media arts, have received top awards in the National YoungArts 2015 Competition. Max and Michael were named photography finalists and invited to the National YoungArts Week in January for final determination of awards (Level 3, $1000; Level 2, $1500; Level 1, $3000; Silver, $5000; Gold, $10,000). Only 10 students are finalists in the photography discipline. Satya received a Merit Award for cinema. Only 21 students received merit in the cinema discipline. These three were among more than 11,000 student applicants. Only 786 YoungArts winners were named in the visual, literary, design and performing arts. These young artists represent some of the nation's very best in cinematic arts, dance, design arts, jazz, music, photography, theater, visual arts, voice and writing. Perpich Arts High School receives an engraved plaque with the names of every winner from the school. Congrats, guys!

Perpich dance educators present at national conference

Mary Harding, Perpich Arts High School dance instructor and Diane Aldis, Perpich Outreach dance education coordinator, presented at the National Dance Education Organization's annual conference in Chicago in November. As a writing team member of the National Coalition for Core Arts Standards, Harding was part of the team's roll-out session for the new national standards in dance. Aldis presented two sessions and co-chaired the annual meeting of the National Special Interest Group for Teaching Artists and Arts Organizations.

Perpich dance educator published in national journal

Outreach dance education coordinator Diane Aldis' article on creative leadership and educational equity in K-12 dance was published in the October issue of the national "Journal of Dance Education." The article came out of a series of retreats for Minnesota dance educators looking at the evolving best practices in dance pedagogy including how race, identity and gender impact the dance classroom. The workshops were presented through a partnership between Perpich, Minneapolis Public Schools and West Metro Education Program.

Music instructor Janika Vandervelde premiere's new collaboration

Working with choreographer Deborah Jinza Thayer, music instructor and composer Janika Vandervelde premiered "Diana" at the Cowles Center in November. Vandervelde describes the music for the piece as an "electric soundscape" that she began working on in 2010. Part of it incorporates guitar played by another Perpich music instructor, James Allen. Other sounds arise from the choreographer's movements when she dances with a 25-foot-long piece of fabric. The work was funded by two grants from Live Music for Dance Minnesota.

Visual arts instructor featured in "Expose Art Magazine"

Pat Benincasa's work was selected for inclusion in the December 2014 special edition of "Expose Art Magazine-International Juried Publication." Her work is featured on pages 26 and 27. "Expose Art Magazine" is created by artists for artists. The first publication will be a special edition geared toward the biggest art market event in the world, Art Basel. The publication will be distributed at no cost to select collectors and galleries participating in the 2014 event. Great news, Pat!

Reel Youth honors Perpich media alumni

"Lesbie," a film by 2013 media grads Adam Jacobs and Lukas Sorenson, and "Hank," a film by Jacobs, Sorenson and fellow media grads Ziaoye Jiang and Alyssa Reynolds, won first and second place, respectively, in the 2013-14 Reed Youth Film Festival. Each year Reel Youth receives student film submissions from around the world. They take the best and show them at the Vancouver International Film Festival. The movies then are packaged with other local student films across North America (mostly Canada). After the tour of 40 festivals, they tabulate the votes from each local festival. To have the top two films accepted out of all the entries is a real honor. Congrats to all our alumni involved in these productions!

Ongoing Perpich Outreach projects breaking new ground in media arts education

Perpich visual/media arts education coordinator Jeremy Holien is working with Columbia Heights elementary schools to develop the first-ever elementary media arts program in the state. They are currently doing curriculum mapping, infrastructure development and recommendations for equipment purchases and room remodeling for their first model/pilot program next year. After the first school runs its pilot media arts program, the district's other two elementary schools will move into the funding stream for their own media arts programs.

Holien also is working at Minnesota State University-Moorhead (MSUM) with a team of educators to develop a media arts certificate program for current teachers of the arts and a five-year BFA program where visual arts education majors will gain media arts expertise within required professional fifth-year courses. Holien hopes to thread that development into student teacher capacity that could develop at the arts high school and Crosswinds School, developing Perpich Center's current schools into model sites for pre-service teacher development. MSUM hopes to use the findings of the collaboration to inform a multi-million dollar renovation of its Center for the Arts to better facilitate the cross-arts learning models. Holien will be MSUM's featured speaker at a professional development and student art show Jan. 23.

Field trips enrich Perpich classes

A sampling of excursions during the past month or so: The painting methods and materials class visited the Minneapolis Institute of Arts (MIA) to “step into the timeless, magnificent, other-worldly realm of Painting,” according to instructor Pat Benincasa. Media students also visited the MIA to meet with David Little, curator and head of the photography and new media department. Architecture class students visited the Walker Art Center courtesy of architect Eric Hansen—thanks, Eric! Art history students were at the MIA looking at the show, “Italian Style: Fashion since 1945,” an exhibit that instructor Craig Farmer called a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Farmer says in more than 25 years he does not recall an extensive fashion exhibit at any Twin Cities museum. Another group of students traveled to the Minnesota History Center to see that museum’s toy exhibit.

Architects lead special museum architecture unit in art history class

Two local architects led an eight-day museum architecture class in Craig Farmer’s art history class. Bob Russeck, an architect with 44 years of experience and more than 200 buildings to his credit, belongs to the Society of Architectural Historians and Institute for Classical Art and Architecture. Ashley Peterson works as lead designer at CO/A Studio, designing both commercial and residential spaces. The class is offered collaboratively through the American Institute of Architects. The students designed paper models of museum exhibitions for the artist or art work of their choice.

Student government representatives for 2014-15

The student government representatives were announced just shortly after this newsletter went to press last month. They are:

Sjournee Cornelius-Quaidoo and Libby Herrmann, dance

Marie Thoraldson and Helena Balczak, literary

Avery Ellis and Sophia Deutsch, media

Tori Jones and Max Finch-Raymond, music

Bex Staneslow and Regan Dockery, theater

Sten Kielblock and Faith Rawson, visual

Dance students serve as education volunteers at Orchestra Hall

Perpich dancers volunteered their time Dec. 6 to lead dance activities at the pre-show educational event for “Amahl and the Night Visitors” at Orchestra Hall. The Perpich dancers were part of a multi-station event, leading concertgoers in several movement activities based on the opera. They also had Perpich student recruitment material available. Thank you, dancers!

Have any empty two-liter plastic bottles?

The design students would love to have them. They are on a quest for two-liter plastic pop bottles for an indoor micro-garden experiment they are developing. If you have any two-liter plastic pop bottles, or will be drinking from any two-liter plastic pop bottles overwinter break, please bring them to the design program space for reuse.
